Asking for and Giving Advice

There are many ways to ask for and to give advice.

Here are some expressions you can use to ask for and to give advice.

Asking for Advice	Giving Advice
What do you suggest? How do you suggest I ... ? Do you have any advice for ... ? What should I bring?	The best way ... I strongly advise ... Why don't you ... I suggest you bring ...

Examples:

- Peter: What should I bring?
- Nigel: I suggest you wear a light jacket and hiking boots.
- Sandra: What should I tell Rob?
- Rebecca: You should tell him the cake delivery will be late.

Making and Responding to Promises

When someone makes a promise, they make a commitment to someone else to doing or not doing something.

You use the Future tense (with will) to make promises.

For example: I'll do the dishes right away.

You can also make a promise by using the words "I promise" before an action.

For example: I promise to clean my room., I promise I'll do the dishes right away.

You can respond to promises with an expression like:

Great!
I believe you.
OK, no problem.
That's fine.
Thanks a lot!

Examples:

- Nigel: I promise we'll go ziplining next time we have a school break.
- Peter: Great! I can't wait!
